She's only in her teens, but Langley's Tiffany Desrosiers has already hit a high note in her musical career.

The 16-year-old Langley Fine Arts School student took first place in the intermediate voice category at the annual B.C. provincial competition for performing arts, held June 2-6 in Kamloops.

Tiffany represented the Kiwanis Fraser Valley region and competed against more than 20 exceptional voice competitors from all over British Columbia.

The accomplishment has not come without hard work, focus and a drive to succeed. Tiffany began singing lessons at the age of nine and is currently a student at an Abbotsford music academy.

Last summer, Tiffany was a finalist at the Vancouver PNE talent search.

She has also been involved in Langley Fine Arts School's chamber and senior choirs for the past two years.
